Medication Reconciliation is the process of ensuring that a Patient’s medication record is completely correct and up to date. This is necessary since medication errors are a common, costly, and often preventable problem. Adopting a Medication Reconciliation process is a strategy for reducing such errors.

eCW provides tools for performing medication reconciliation. Medications that have been prescribed by providers from other practices can be entered into the Current Medication list and verified by the provider. Medications from previous encounters can be brought forward to the current encounter for discussion during the encounter.
